Session 214: Point of awareness

Original Question: Will we experience a state of bliss in a nonduality?

Summary: The right and the left are separate entities. They have their own stability so they will exist even when you are no longer a part of them in creation. The only change that occurs is when they merge together.

You have the ability to pull unto yourself enough uncreated energy to become a force unto yourself that will reach a point of awareness, knowings, that is able to be stable on its own. Then being able to merge with other energies to merge and create.
